Helps Make Last Wishes Come True

Stichting Ambulance Wens Nederland / Ambulance Wish Foundation

A last chance to go home, a trip to the sea, or even go to a concert... Ambulance Wish Foundation makes last wishes come true for terminally ill patients who are nearing the end of their lives. It's usually little things that are so important to a patient but seem impossible. Ambulance wish foundation has specially designed ambulances for this purpose equipped with extra comfortable stretchers. Qualified medical staff accompanies the patient during the wish.

How it started

In early 2007 while working as an ambulance driver, I transported the terminally ill seaman Mario Stefanutto to hospital. On our way to the hospital we took a detour via the Vlaardingen harbour. I was extremely moved by his reaction of intense happiness on seeing the canal and therefore arranged for him to have a boat tour through the Rotterdam harbour. I borrowed an ambulance from my employer so that I could take Mario on the boat tour. Mario was astonished that this was possible and had an unforgettable experience. I was amazed that by just a few simple telephone calls I was able to help him. It dawned on me that this was a concept that could help fulfill many more last wishes.

Ambulance Wish Foundation was set up within the following two months. We fulfill a number of wishes on a daily basis and we are so fortunate to have over two hundred qualified volunteers. Kees Veldboer, Founder Ambulance Wish Foundation
